

David J. McClure, Treasurer

Dave McClure is a financial consultant serving as the interim CFO for six startup companies. He has been wearing hearing aids since 1985 and is currently classified as having a severe hearing loss. He became familiar with CCAF as a grateful client of the California Telephone Access Program.

After a long career in wireless, networking and other communications technology companies, Dave became the interim CEO of Pacific Medical Research Foundation and then was named CEO of the Hearing Society of the Bay Area. He was instrumental in merging the Hearing Society with San Francisco Hearing and Speech to form the Hearing and Speech Center of Northern California, which he served as the CEO as well as the interim CFO.

Prior to his nonprofit role, Dave was a consultant focusing on business strategy, Startup Company fundraising, mergers and acquisitions. Before becoming a consultant, Dave was a general manager of Cisco Systems business unit after the acquisition of JetCell, a wireless company he co-founded. Before co-founding JetCell, he was president and CEO of Multipoint Networks, and served in various leadership roles at other Bay Area high-tech companies for fifteen years. In addition to serving on the board of CCAF, Dave is a member of the board of directors of Pacific Medical Research Foundation and an advisor to two nonprofits, Youth and Family Enrichment Services and the Hearing and Speech Center of Northern California. Dave has an MBA from University of California, Irvine, MSEE from University of Southern California and BSEE from University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.
